Legislative Training Through WV Fair Shake Network, January 20, 2015

by Donna M. Williams

Thanks to WVAD, I attended another legislative training through WV Fair Shake Network on January 20, 2015. WVAD is a member of Fair Shake. Fair Shake is an advocacy group for all disabilities.

The first presenter was Stephanie Tyree, Director of Community Engagement and Policy with the West Virginia HUB. The WV Hub is a statewide, non-profit organization that helps communities come together to set goals for their future and connects them to the rich network of resources they need to meet those goals. Some of the things this organization does include: teach political action; help find funding for projects; train community leaders to be leaders, etc.

The topic of Stephanie’s presentation was “Overview of the Legislative Process.” She emphasized several things one must do to get a bill proposed and passed into a law. These are:

- Know and understand the process how an idea becomes a law.
- Have a plan for your idea.
- Know your legislators—both those who will support and those who will oppose. Be careful not to be negative but do not underestimate them.

- Become friends with the legislators. Build a relationship by inviting them to your events and go to their open events. Ask them what they support and what they oppose. Ask them what they think about disabilities rights. Ask them what they will do for us. Don’t trust them too much.

- Meet legislators during interim—April through December. Do not meet them during legislative session. They are too busy during legislative session. When meeting with the legislator, ask him/her what they think about disability rights.

Greetings all,

Spring is just around the corner. I am really looking forward to going out more and I am sure you are too!

The WVAD Board had their Board meeting on October 1 at Snowshoe Mountain Resort. We are pleased to announce the theme for the upcoming WVAD's 40th Biennial Conference and 100th Anniversary to be held at the Snowshoe Mountain Resort – Snowshoe, WV, on August 6-9, 2015. The theme is "Celebrating a Century of Bridging the Gap between WVAD and You." Please see the conference flyer on page 5 and registration combo form on page 7, along with lodging information on page 9. We hope you will come to our conference!

Legislative Training workshop and Disability Advocacy Day was hosted by the Fair Shake Network (FSN) on Tuesday, January 20, and Wednesday, January 21, 2015, in Charleston, WV. WVAD sent Donna Williams, Secretary, to attend Legislative Training workshop and set up WVAD exhibit booth at Disability Advocacy Day. See the story on page 1.

I want to update everyone on the projects or things that have been happening in West Virginia:

- West Virginia Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing (WVCDHH) hired Earnest Covington III as the new Executive Director. He began working at WVCDHH on January 5, 2015.
- WVCDHH has a job opening for a Project Director/Staff Interpreter position. Anyone who is interested in this position can apply through this link at <http://www.personnel.wv.gov/SiteCollectionDocuments/Miscellaneous%20Documents/Application.pdf>.
- The Deaf Awareness Day that was planned for February 25, 2015, at WV State Capitol has been cancelled due to scheduling conflict. WVAD and WVCDHH will start planning soon for next year and hopefully we are going to have this event in 2016.

A quick reminder for those who have not paid for expired membership (see page 23 for form), please send the form and payment to our Membership Coordinator, Larry Hubbard. Good news! WVAD is now accepting debit and credit cards for membership fees, etc. We are currently accepting Visa, Mastercard, and Discover. If you are not a member of WVAD, please join. If you have any questions about membership, please contact Larry Hubbard. Your support and dues help keep WVAD going.

In closing, WVAD has reached a milestone in 2015—the organization is turning 100 years old. Please check the WVAD website (www.wvad.net) or WV Association of the Deaf page on Facebook for more information and updates.

- Do not become annoying or a pest. Do not be rude or demanding. These can defeat what you want to accomplish. Be polite, friendly, and respectful.

Stephanie emphasized this process takes much time and patience. She reminded us that legislative session is only 60 days!

The second presenter was Chris Marr, from the CRW Management Group. This is a public affairs company that provides clients governmental consulting, lobbying, and community outreach. They are committed to providing positive, professional public affairs representation of client's view to the state and local government entities. They also maintain a comprehensive bill tracking system that enables the public to analyze, track, and report to the public on the progress of all legislation that pertains to the individual issues. They also promote community development, sustainability, and safety.

The topic of Chris' presentation was "Working with Decision Makers." Who are the decision makers? The most important decision makers are all Republicans. These include:

- President of the State Senate – Senator Bill Cole from Mercer County.
- Speaker of the House – Delegate Tim Armstead from Kanawha County.
- Finance Chairpersons – Senator Mike Hall from Putnam County and Delegate Eric Nelson from Kanawha County.
- Heath Committee Chairpersons – Senator Ryan Ferns from Ohio County and Delegate Joe Ellington from Mercer County.

Chris emphasized we, as advocates for the deaf and hard of hearing children and qualified interpreters, need to know who are chairperson(s) of the committee(s) we are most interested in, especially the chairpersons and members of the Education Committee.

Chris also shared some tips to keep in mind when contacting a decision maker or meeting with him/her:

- Some common mistakes to avoid – becoming too emotional, taking too much time, invading their time and space, becoming too demanding, etc.

- Who we should contact such as staff and committee members.
- What we should say and not say, keeping the meeting short with less than three important points about your issue and less than 10 minutes.
- What the best way is to contact the decision makers – phone call, e-mail, letter, etc.
- Where the best places are to meet the decision makers – at the Capitol, community gatherings, political rallies, festivals and fair, etc.
- When the best times are to meet the decision makers – during legislative session, private meetings, community meetings, etc. Remember it is best to schedule an appointment.
- Why you should contact the decision makers is because YOU know what is best for you, your group, and your organization.

However, when approaching decision makers or when meeting with them, we must be polite; respectful of their privacy, time, and space; keep the conversation or meeting short and to the point, etc.

A website Chris suggested to use most often is www.legis.state.wv.us/index.cfm. This gives the schedule of the legislative session and updates of each bill being proposed.

A third presenter was Paul Smith, administrative assistant for WV Fair Shake Network. The topic of his presentation was "Communication is Key to Successful Advocacy." There are many ways to communicate information. These include:

- Personal letters;
- E-mails;
- Quarterly newsletters;
- Website at www.fairshake.org;
- Community outreach exhibits at various events;
- Social media such as Facebook and Twitter; and
- Text alerts on smartphones.

Paul emphasized the same as Stephanie and Chris did about what to do when meeting with legislators. However, he added that you need to explain why your issue is important and always follow-up within a few days.

There were also two panels. One panel was "Working in Partnership" and it included representatives from various agencies such as People First, Division of Rehabilitation Services, WV Advocates, WVU Center of Excellence in Disabilities, etc. The people on the panel shared some history about their agencies and how it serves their clients. They emphasized working together for all disabilities.

The second panel was "Disability Agenda" and it included representatives from various agencies that deal with various disabilities such as WV Olmstead, WV Statewide Independent Living Council, WV Bureau for Behavioral Health & Health Facilities, WV Developmental Disabilities Council and Job Squad, etc. They also shared some information about their organizations.

This training was very informative and I learned a lot in addition to the NAD Legislative Training April Hottle and I attended in Richmond, VA, last November. I feel more ready to work on the Deaf Child Bill of Rights, the Interpreter Registry Law to add consequences if interpreters are not listed on the Registry, and the ASL law to allow deaf people to teach ASL in grades K-12 for Legislative Session 2016. I hope we can get some of these presenters to come to the WVAD conference or provide a workshop for WVAD. If you have any questions about these two workshops, please see me or contact me. 🇺🇸

Fair Shake Network Disability Advocacy Day at the State Capitol, January 21, 2015

by Donna M. Williams

West Virginia Association of the Deaf (WVAD) is a member of WV Fair Shake Network. Fair Shake is an advocacy group for all disabilities. They are very supportive of deaf, deaf-blind, and hard of hearing.

Each year, Fair Shake hosts a Disability Advocacy Day at the State Capitol. They invite all agencies and organizations dealing with any disability to have an exhibit at the Upper Rotunda. WVAD has had an exhibit on this day several times in the past. The legislators come out of their meetings and walk through the Rotunda gathering information. Everyone was encouraged to make an appointment with his/her legislator.

This year there were a total of 22 exhibits. Some exhibits were very simple and other exhibits had tri-fold posters with many pictures and various devices to help those with mobility disabilities. Some of the exhibitors included:

- WV Division of Rehabilitation Services
- Fair Housing Action Network
- People First of WV
- WV Advocates
- WVU Center for Excellence in Disabilities
- WV Parent Training & Information
- Special Olympics WV
- Several Centers of Independent Living

- Ron Yost Personal Assistance Services Program

There was also an agency that deals with emergencies, evacuations, etc., for those people with disabilities.

This was a wonderful opportunity to see and talk with others about various disabilities and learn from them. And, also, share about WVAD, deafness, and hard of hearing. Many people stopped by the WVAD exhibit and picked up some information.

Thanks to Larry Hubbard and Earnest Covington for stopping by and joining me. Also, thanks to Fair Shake for providing an interpreter for WVAD and lunch for all the exhibitors. I hope more deaf and hard of hearing can attend this event next year. 🇺🇸

Legislators Support Improvements for Schools for the Deaf and the Blind

By Marla Pisciotta, For The State Journal (<http://www.statejournal.com/story/27791609/legislators-support-improvements-for-schools-for-the-deaf-and-the-blind>), Posted: January 8, 2015, 10:08 a.m. EST; Updated February 7, 2015, 10:08 a.m. EST

After setting a goal to address additional funding for the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind during the upcoming legislative session, 33 lawmakers toured the campus December 9, 2014.

The bipartisan delegation visited the campus in Romney to see firsthand the condition of the campus, the educational program improvements and what could be done in the future.

William White, a member of the West Virginia Board of Education and member of the WVSDB advisory board, said he's been the school's strongest advocate.

"This campus has been neglected for so long," White said. "The legal rendering is the School Building Authority, by statute, could not invest money into the schools. I was not going to let that be the end of that."

White said the options seemed to be either fund the school or close it.

"The Legislature already said they don't want the schools closed," White said. "(Delegate) Ruth (Rowan, R-Hampshire) worked on getting this tour put together.

"She wanted everyone to come here to see the great things that are happening so the legislators know exactly what is going on."

White said Hampshire County is not responsible to support the schools, so some action must happen in the next legislative session.

"Kids are here, the buildings are falling down; it's a safety issue," he said.

Newly elected Sen. Charles Trump, R-Morgan, said he's hopeful the tour "will pay dividends in the upcoming Legislature."

A $13 million line item is included in the Legislature's budget every year to maintain schools. Local hopes are that a much bigger, second line item will be put in the budget for capital improvements and other needs at the schools.

One of the items on the tour itinerary included showing the delegation what the "short course" at the schools is all about. The short course is children from across the state with hearing and or vision loss that come to the schools sporadically for a week's stay to acclimate and see what and how the schools work. Rowan said the short course students come from families who aren't sure whether they want their children to live away from home.

"I have certainly been aware of the history of the campus. They provide wonderful programs," said outgoing Delegate Mary Poling, D-Barbour, former House of Delegates Education Committee chairman.

"Buildings need repair and replacement. Technology has outgrown the buildings. I don't think there is any way an individual county, even the larger ones, could provide the education to these children the way WVSDB does," Poling added.

The visit was the first time on campus for Poling but she said she is in favor of upgrading the facilities.

"We need to do some work with this campus. It is absolutely an intricate part of the school system in West Virginia," said Delegate Craig Blair, R-Berkeley. "I'm up for freeing up more money to be able to help."

The West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind has not experienced significant capital projects in nearly 40 years, with the last buildings erected in the 1970s.

In addition, the schools have not experienced significant renovation in nearly 30 years with only one sizable renovation occurring to Seaton Hall in the 1980s.

"Lynn (Boyer) has done a good job addressing issues," said David Mohr, senior policy analyst for the House Education Committee. "I've been on campus several times. The service personnel do such a good job maintaining the grounds and buildings you actually have to look deeper to see where buildings are leaking and roofs are deteriorating."

Mohr said the WVSDB has state-wide value.

Taking a break from the tour, Trump said, "This school is just wonderful."

"I'm so glad that Ruth has put this together ... everyone is getting a look at it and understands how unique it is," he said.

Rowan spearheaded the visit after the decision of the state to keep the schools in Romney.

"It's been a gradual process," Rowan said. "We have had delegates brave the ice to get here. Some stayed overnight to support the schools.

"City of Romney Mayor Dan Hileman and City Administrator Eileen Johnson have been on the tour to show their support of the schools. The day has been wonderful," she added.

Funding Bill for Deaf, Blind Schools Advances

By Ryan Quinn, Charleston Gazette Staff Writer (<http://charlestongazette.wv.newsmemory.com/publink.php?shareid=19c7f40d4>), January 27, 2015

A bill that would allow the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and Blind to access more funding for construction projects unanimously passed a House of Delegates committee Monday.

House Bill 2160 would allow the Romney schools to apply for all funding doled out by the state School Building Authority, to which the 55 county school districts submit proposals for construction and renovation projects with the hope SBA members select their projects.

Currently, the schools, which though located in Hampshire County are not part of its school district, are allowed to compete for only about $1.5 million of the SBA's annual funds — about 3 percent of its total money available, according to testimony at Monday's meeting. In December, the SBA denied the schools' request for almost $500,000 of the limited funds they currently are allowed to ask for in favor of other projects.

The bill would make the schools eligible for SBA's other funding programs and ban the SBA from ranking regular school districts' projects ahead of it simply because those districts offer matching local funding. Unlike schools that are part of county districts, the Schools for the Deaf and Blind aren't supported by any local property taxes, relying completely on state appropriations.

While the schools have had to close buildings out of safety concerns, Delegate Ruth Rowan, a Hampshire Republican sponsoring the bill, said the first priority will be to renovate the current secondary education building for deaf students and to also move the elementary school deaf children there.

Rowan said the consolidated facility would save on utilities on the campus — which Mary Catherine Funk, attorney for the state school board, said has 445,000 square feet of buildings across 13 different structures — as well as allow all students to benefit from technology in the same building. The current secondary education building is safer than the elementary building, which is close to a highway and was built in the 1930s, Rowan said.

"It's outdated," she said. Residential and educational buildings at the schools, according to Monday's testimony, haven't seen significant renovations during the past two decades. The schools were established in 1870. Architects have estimated they need about $82 million worth of repairs and renovations to various buildings.

Rowan said the more than 150 students enrolled at the schools are among more than 700 across the state who receive services from the institutions, which produce large-print textbooks for students with vision issues and also accept pupils from other schools for temporary courses.

If the SBA approves funding in the future for the deaf school consolidation, Rowan said the schools may request future funding for new residential facilities and other projects.

After passing the House Education Committee Monday, the bill is headed to the House Finance Committee.

Delegates OK WVSDB Funding Bill

Posted by Hampshire Review Staff (<http://www.hampshirereview.com/blog/2015/02/18/delegates-ok-wvsdb-funding-bill/>), Wednesday, February 18th, 2015

CHARLESTON — The House of Delegates unanimously approved Tuesday a bill that opens the door to fund campus renovations at the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind.

House Bill 2160 passed 95-0 with 5 delegates not voting. It makes WVSDB eligible for major funding by the School Building Authority. The bill now heads to the State Senate.

"It states that the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind need major improvements," said Ruth Rowan, the Hampshire County Republican who introduced the legislation. "It was such a great feeling today to see our school unanimously supported."

The school applied for SBA funds a year ago, only to be instructed that as a state agency it couldn't participate in the approximately $45 million the authority dishes out annually to projects for the state's 55 county school systems.

"It's a really important measure that opened their eligibility for SBA funding," said Senator Charles Trump, R-Morgan, who has signed on as a sponsor of the Senate version of the bill. "I haven't heard anybody say they have real problem with it."

House Bill 2160 would let WVSDB jump in the funding pool. The bill would also bar the SBA from downgrading WVSDB projects because they don't include matching funds as county projects do.

WVSDB doesn't have local property taxes to rely on for funding as county schools do.

Daylight Savings Time, March 8, 2015, at 2:00 a.m.

Most of the U.S., Canada, and Mexico's northern border cities will start Daylight Saving Time (DST) at 2:00 a.m. local time on March 8, 2015. The clocks will "spring forward" (by shifting the clock forward) an hour to daylight time, so that evenings have more daylight and mornings have less. Most of Europe will start Daylight Savings Time on the last Sunday in March. Most of North America shifts at 2:00 a.m. local time, so its zones do not shift at the same time; for example, Mountain Time can be temporarily either zero or two hours ahead of Pacific Time.

Daylight Savings Time – also summer time in several countries – is the practice of advancing clocks so that evenings have more daylight and mornings have less. Typically clocks are adjusted forward one hour near the start of spring and are adjusted backward in autumn. The modern idea of daylight saving was first implemented during the First World War. Many countries have used it at various times since then.

The practice has been both praised and criticized. Adding daylight to evenings benefits retailing, sports, and other activities that exploit sunlight after working hours, but can cause problems for evening entertainment and other occupations tied to the sun. Although an early goal of DST was to reduce evening usage of incandescent lighting, formerly a primary use of electricity, modern heating and cooling usage patterns differ greatly, and research about how DST currently affects energy use is limited or contradictory.

Starting in 2007, most of the United States and Canada observe DST from the second Sunday in March to the first Sunday in November, almost two-thirds of the year. The 2007 U.S. change was part of the Energy Policy Act of 2005; previously, from 1987 through 2006, the start and end dates were the first Sunday in April and the last Sunday in October, and Congress retains the right to go back to the previous dates now that an energy-consumption study has been done.

DST clock shifts present other challenges. They complicate timekeeping and can disrupt meetings, travel, billing, recordkeeping, medical devices, heavy equipment, and sleep patterns. Software can often adjust computer clocks automatically, but this can be limited and error-prone, particularly when Daylight Saving Time protocols are changed. ## BEER BRAISED IRISH STEW AND COLCANNON

(Prep Time: 1 hour. Cook Time: 2 hours. Ready in 3 hours. Servings: 8)

(<http://allrecipes.com/Recipe-Tools/Print/Recipe.aspx?recipeID=213340&origin=detail&servings=8&metric=false>)

Irish Stew:

1 Tbsp vegetable oil
1 (3 lb) beef chuck roast, trimmed off fat and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
2 Tbsp all-purpose flour
1 cup coarsely chopped onion
1 cup coarsely chopped carrot
1 (12 fl oz) can or bottle dark beer
2 bay leaves
1 tsp dried thyme
1 tsp salt
1/2 tsp ground black pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 Tbsp Worcestershire sauce

Colcannon:

3 slices bacon
2 lbs russet potatoes, peeled and cut into chunks
2 cups thinly sliced cabbage
1/4 cup milk, warmed
Tbsp butter
1/2 tsp salt
1/4 tsp ground black pepper
2 Tbsp minced fresh parsley

1. Preheat oven to 325 °F (165 °C).
2. Heat the vegetable oil in a large Dutch oven over medium-high heat until very hot, and brown the meat in 2 batches, stirring to brown the cubes on all sides. Return all the meat to the Dutch oven, sprinkle with flour, and stir lightly to coat the meat with flour. Stir in onion, carrots, dark beer, bay leaves, thyme, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, garlic, and Worcestershire sauce. Bring the mixture to a boil, and cover.
3. Place the Dutch oven into the preheated oven, and cook for 45 minutes; uncover, stir the stew, and cook until the beef is very tender and the liquid is reduced by half, about 45 more minutes.
4. Place the bacon in a large, deep skillet, and cook over medium-high heat, turning occasionally, until evenly browned, about 10 minutes. Drain the bacon slices on a paper towel-lined plate. Crumble the bacon and set aside.
5. About 30 minutes before the stew is ready, make the colcannon: place the potatoes into a large pot and cover with salted water. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to medium-low, cover, and simmer until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain and allow to steam dry for a minute or two.
6. Place the cabbage into a microwave-safe bowl, and add 1 or 2 tablespoons of water. Cover and microwave on high for about 2-1/2 minutes; uncover (watch out for steam) and stir the cabbage. Cover and microwave for about 2-1/2 more minutes, until the cabbage is slightly tender but not mushy. Drain excess liquid and set the cabbage aside, covered.
7. Place the potatoes into a large bowl, and add milk, butter, 1/2 teaspoon of salt, and 1/4 teaspoon of pepper. Beat the potatoes with an electric mixer until smooth and creamy. Stir in the cabbage, crumbled bacon, and parsley until well combined.
8. To serve, place a scoop of colcannon onto a plate, make a hollow, and fill with braised beef stew.

IRISH CREAM ICE CREAM

1/2 cup brown sugar

2 cups heavy whipping cream
1 Tbsp vanilla extract
1/2 cup Irish cream liqueur

1. Beat together half-and-half, white sugar, and brown sugar in a large bowl with an electric mixer on medium speed until the sugars have dissolved.
2. Stir heavy cream and vanilla extract into the mixture until smooth.
3. Pour the mixture into an ice cream maker and freeze according to manufacturer's instructions.
4. About 2 minutes before the end of freezing time, pour Irish cream liqueur into the ice cream maker; allow the machine to finish freezing the ice cream.
